

Border Eagle

Laughlin Air Force Base, Texas ... Together we 'XL'

Vol. 49, No. 26

www.laughlin.af.mil

July 6, 2001

Viewpoints:

The 47th Operations Group deputy director of maintenance explains how troop recognition is one of the most important aspects of being a good leader...

Page 2

News:

Chief Master Sgt. Stephen Enyeart, 47th Flying Training Wing command chief master sergeant, enlists for the last time alongside two first-term senior airman...

Page 4

Mission Status

(As of June 26)

	1.4
T-1
	-1.22
T-38
	-.1
T-37

Total Sorties FY01: 49,091
Total Hours FY01: 73,342
Wings Earned FY01: 227
Wings Earned Since 1963: 11,935

Air Power

Quote of the Week

"Flying has torn apart the relationship of space and time: it uses our old clock but with new yardsticks."

—Charles A. Lindbergh

Bike cops patrol Laughlin

By Airman Basic
Timothy J. Stein

Staff writer

On June 29, 47th Security Forces Squadron members began patrolling Laughlin streets on bicycles in an attempt to enhance base law enforcement capabilities and provide an opportunity for positive police contact with the public.

There will be 15 patrolmen specially trained for this assignment, said Capt. Joseph Musacchia, 47th Security Forces Squadron operations officer. Musacchia said he hopes to have a bicycle patrolman on both 12-hour shifts. The bicycles will patrol the housing and shopping areas on base.

The bicycle cop program has been used in the past only when funding has been available. For the past few years the bicycle cop was only used during special events, such as the warrior run and triathlon, said Musacchia.

After working closely with the 47th Flying Training Wing, Musacchia was able to get permission to reinstate the bicycle program on a full-time basis.

Musacchia said the bike patrol program is designed to assist in crime prevention, increase community contact and police special events.

Musacchia said along with the mobility, speed and stealth qualities of the bicycle, it is also a successful crime prevention tool.

"Patrol cars are limited to the streets," he said. "Bicycles can go on sidewalks and between buildings and parked cars. If a patrolman came upon someone committing a crime, it would often be easier for a patrolman to catch the perpetrator on a bike rather than in a car."

Another aspect of the bicycle patrol Musacchia said he likes is the public contact it generates.

"Studies have shown that putting a patrolman in a vehicle dehumanizes him," he said. "If you are in your front yard, you're not going to talk to someone driving

See 'Bikes,' page 4

Photo by Airman Basic Timothy J. Stein

Airman 1st Class Edward Merz, 47th Security Forces Squadron installation patrolman, patrols Laughlin streets June 29. There will be 15 bike cops patrolling Laughlin in the near future.

Officers salute base enlisted troops

By Airman 1st Class Brad Pettit
Editor

Laughlin officers will salute enlisted troops from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. July 11 during Enlisted Appreciation Day, an inaugural recognition to honor the contributions made by stripe-wearing members of the base community.

Enlisted Appreciation Day, sponsored by the Company Grade Officers Council and hosted by Col. Jack Egginton, 47th Flying Training Wing commander, will give officers the opportunity to cater to enlisted troops. Various commanders and officers will serve as cookout chefs, sports referees and targets for a pie-in-the-face contest.

"Commanders should encourage their enlisted troops to take some well-deserved time off to spend with friends and family during Enlisted Appreciation Day," said 1st Lt. Melissa Parent, Company Grade Officers Council president. "This event is the perfect opportunity to foster fellowship between noncommissioned officers and airmen, while officers make sure the enlisted corps has a good time."

Various sporting activities are planned and will pit

See 'Appreciation,' page 5

Commanders' Corner

By Mark Hewitt
47th Operations Group
deputy director of maintenance

Troop recognition promotes job satisfaction

The former mayor of New York City would routinely walk the streets of the city, approach people and say: "Hi there. I'm Mayor Ed Koch. How am I doing?"

The mayor knew that by asking others for their opinions and feedback, he extended a gesture of respect and consideration, and he walked away with some pretty helpful feedback to enhance his performance. Of those he asked, he always complimented and thanked them for their time and consideration.

Not many people have the courage to ask their supervisors, "How am I doing?" Supervisors, charged with assessing employee performance, often squander opportunities to recognize the good work of the people who work for them. When this happens, employees feel unappreciated or unrecognized. When hard-working employees are unhappy and taken for granted, chances are they will look for someone or someplace else that appreciates them.

According to a survey by Robert Half International Inc., up to 25 percent of good employees who quit their jobs cite a lack of appreciation as the primary reason. Military surveys of their members "departing the pattern" rarely cite money or job satisfaction as main reasons for leaving. However, high on the list of the reasons, respondents annotate the lack of caring and appreciation from their leaders.

Successful leaders have figured it out – they give appropriate recognition when and where it is deserved. If you study successful leaders the most striking trait they share is what I call an "attitude of gratitude." Successful leaders look for opportunities to recognize their good people, not limiting positive feedback to just the performance appraisal. Our new secretary of state, Colin Powell, cannot walk into a room without finding something or someone to praise. Those who previously worked for General Powell are on record saying they would do anything for him. Napoleon Bonaparte once said, "A soldier will fight long and hard for a bit of

"Successful leaders have figured it out – they give appropriate recognition when and where it is deserved."

See 'Recognition,' page 3

Top Three Talk

By Senior Master Sgt. Rolland Roth Jr.
47th Security Forces Squadron manager

Air Force professionals provide reason to stay in Almost 19 years ago, I decided to join the Air Force. I come from a military family. My father served 21 years in the Navy, and my family has accumulated more than 70 years of service and served in four wars. Interestingly, I never had the slightest intention of joining the military. I wasn't very fond of discipline as a young man.

At 21, I was on my third year as a warehouse foreman. My bride and I had recently welcomed our first daughter into the world. I was at the height of my potential career with this small company, but I wanted more. I wanted to be a professional. I didn't have a college degree; I had completed one semester and decided it wasn't my bag. My great respect for my father's military service led me to choose the Air Force as my most viable career option. I had always respected military members as true professionals, probably because they served so proudly despite the personal hardships they faced.

My first three years in the Air Force were relatively typical for that era. I learned and did my job, along with painting, mowing grass, pulling weeds, emptying trash and pulling details. I enjoyed my job as a small-arms instructor, but still wanted more. I sat down with a wise, crusty old chief – you know the type – and he said some simple words that changed my life: "If you don't like being an airman, get promoted." It made sense to me, so I did.

As time went by, my superiors gave me more latitude in how I did my job. I found the more dedicated and productive I was, the more they turned "control" over to me. As a young noncommissioned officer, another wise senior NCO gave me counsel I continue to follow to this day. He said, "The real payoff to good leadership is the pride you feel when you see your people succeed." He added, "Your true job is to ensure the professional development of your troops and prepare your replacement." Man, did he ever enlighten me! Up to that point, I thought leadership was just giving orders and making people do things

See 'Advice,' page 3

Col. Jack Egginton
Commander

1st Lt. Dawnita Parkinson
Public affairs chief

Airman 1st Class Brad Pettit
Editor

Airman Basic Timothy Stein
Staff writer

The Border Eagle is published every Friday, except the first week in January and the last week in December, by the Del Rio News Herald, a private firm in no way connected with the U. S. Air Force, under exclusive written contract with the 47th Flying Training Wing, Laughlin Air Force Base, Texas.

This civilian enterprise Air Force newspaper is an authorized publication for members of the U.S. military services.

Contents of the Border Eagle are not necessarily the official views of, or endorsed by, the U.S. Government, the Department of Defense, or the Department of the Air Force. The appearance of advertising in this publication, including inserts or supplements, does not constitute endorsement by the Department of Defense, the Department of the Air Force or the Del Rio News Herald of the products or services advertised. Everything advertised in this publication shall be made available for purchase, use, or patronage without regard to race, color or, religion, sex, national origin, age, marital status, physical handicap, political affiliation or any other nonmerit factor of the purchaser, user or patron.

Editorial content is edited, prepared and provided by the Public Affairs Office of the 47th Flying Training Wing. All photographs are Air Force photographs unless otherwise indicated.

Deadlines, Advertising

News for the Border Eagle should be submitted to the 47th Flying Training Wing Public Affairs Office, Bldg. 338, Laughlin AFB, TX, 298-5262. Copy deadline is close of business each Thursday the week prior to publication.

Advertising should be submitted to the Del Rio News-Herald, 2205 Bedell, Del Rio, TX, 774-4611. Advertising should be submitted by 4 p.m. each Friday.

Submissions can be e-mailed to:
bradley.pettit@laughlin.af.mil or reginald.woodruff@laughlin.af.mil

"Excellence – not our goal, but our standard."

– 47th FTW motto

'Recognition,' from page 2

colored ribbon." Like Powell, when Napoleon recognized one of his troops, it was a personal event that inspired others.

Supervisors who remain in their offices day in and day out miss countless opportunities to see, recognize and reward the uncommon effort that is being done all around them, by both individuals and teams. Sam Walton, Wal-Mart founder, never missed an opportunity to recognize his people. When asked how he built an empire, he commented about his managers, "Outstanding leaders go out of their way to boost the self-esteem of their personnel. If people believe in themselves, it's amazing what they can accomplish."

At Arlington National Cemetery, Felix de Weldon's statue of six men raising the flag on Iwo Jima forms a dramatic and emotional centerpiece to what an organization that is dedicated to bringing out the best in its people can accomplish. Great leaders know that sincere, timely and appreciative words are the most powerful force for good on earth.

When people have leaders who believe in them and take the time to develop them, it is amazing what they can accomplish. The highest compliments leaders can receive are those that are given by the people who work for them. So, if you or your supervisors do not get out and walk around, like Mayor Ed Koch did, and ask "How am I doing?" you need to ask yourself "Why not?"

'Advice,' from page 2

my way. One caring supervisor had abruptly and permanently changed my outlook on leadership and my perception of my role in the Air Force.

Why am I still here? It's not about pay or benefits or what the Air Force can do for me. It's about professionalism and being part of something important. It's about my Air Force family. We defend the American way of life and the freedom of all people. Nothing is more important than that.

It's about my country, my Air Force and my beloved brothers and sisters in arms. We serve all over the world, in every type of austere environment and sacrifice more than some will ever know, sometimes everything. We are the foundation of freedom, and no amount of money can ever render the pride I feel serving next to my fellow airmen. You are professionals and have my absolute respect. You're why I'm still here.

Military lifestyle should not prevent business ventures

By Barbara Weber

Family Support Center transition assistance specialist

Many of us have a dream of one day building our own success by launching a small business.

What stops many people from realizing this are the risks involved with starting a small business. Common fears include loss of security and a steady paycheck.

Despite the risks, there are ways to significantly improve your chances of success when starting a small business; they all include starting out with solid research.

Your chances of success are higher if you develop a good business plan and use your passion for your product or service as the cornerstone for your new business. Risks are inherent in the process – and having an entrepreneurial spirit is a necessity.

There is not a formal test to evaluate your adeptness as an entrepreneur. However, if you can honestly describe yourself as a self-starter, you place a high value on independence, have great organizational skills, and a solid work ethic, you may very well have the ability to be a successful business owner. A positive attitude is one of the most important success factors a small business owner needs to have.

Don't be fooled into thinking that the military lifestyle limits one's opportunity to start a small business – military spouses have great opportunities to take their careers in new directions by starting their own businesses.

The Small Business Administration, in partnership with the Department of Defense, funded a two-year pilot program that provided training on entrepreneurship to military spouses with the goal of identifying portable businesses – businesses that could move with families from duty station to duty station. Their success is outlined at www.onlinewbc.gov – visit the hot topics area to review the Military Spouses' Entrepreneurial Information Page. The success stories are inspirational.

If you are preparing to retire or separate from the Air Force, starting your own business can allow you to build your own career path as you leave the Air Force.

With solid planning, you can take the talents and skills you have developed in the military and use them to create personal business success.

The Veterans Administration can be a great resource to veterans. Although the VA does not do direct lending of funding, they do provide assistance and advice to veterans.

To get started, call the Center for Veterans Enterprise. The toll free number is (866) 584-2344 or (202) 565-8336. Representatives can link you to free resources available through business information centers, the Service Corps of Retired Executives and to many more resources. You can also visit the Website www.vetbiz.gov.

Over the next few months, the Family Support Center Employment Programs (Transition and Career Focus) will focus on helping you investigate entrepreneurship.

For more on private businesses, call 298-5620.

Actionline

298-5351

personal reply. It's also very useful in case more information is needed in order to pursue your inquiry. If you give your name, we will make every attempt to ensure confidentiality when appropriate.

If your question relates to the general interest of the people of Laughlin, the question and answer may also be printed in the Border Eagle. Before you call the Actionline, please try to work the problem out through the normal chain of command or directly with the base agency involved.

Thanks for your cooperation, and I look forward to reading some quality ideas and suggestions.

This column is one way to work through problems that haven't been solved through normal channels. By leaving your name and phone number, you are assured of a timely personal reply.

Col. Jack Egginton
47 FTW commander

AAFES	298-3176
Accounting and Finance	298-5204
Civil Engineer	298-5252
Civilian Personnel	298-5299
Commissary	298-5815
Dormitory manager	298-5213
Hospital	298-6311
Housing	298-5904
Legal	298-5172
Military Personnel	298-5073
Public Affairs	298-5988
Security Forces	298-5900
Services	298-5810
Military Equal Opportunity	298-5400
Equal Employment Opportunity	298-5879
FWA hotline	298-4170

Photo by Dave Niebergall

First and last

Col. Jack Egginton, 47th Flying Training Wing commander, re-enlists Chief Master Sgt. Stephen Enyeart (left), 47th Flying Training Wing command chief, for his last re-enlistment during the enlisted promotion ceremony June 29. Two senior airmen made their first re-enlistments alongside the chief. They were Michael Vaughan (center), 47th Civil Engineer Squadron, and Jacob Ramos from the 47th Medical Group.

'Bikes,' from page 1

by in a car. If, however, someone drives by on a bike, you have a tendency to say, 'Hey, how are you doing?'"

This makes a more positive police presence in the community, said Musacchia. This positive presence helps in crime prevention. Information gets passed to security forces in a more positive matter. This kind of interaction isn't possible when the patrolman is in a car all the time and never interacts with the community.

Airman 1st Class Edward Merz, 47th Security Forces Squadron installation patrolman, was the first member of security forces to take a bike out on a normal patrol.

"People who have never taken an interest in what security forces does will stop and ask me questions," said Merz.

This is the interaction with the public Musacchia says he hopes the program will generate.

"Hopefully, people will start seeing us as people doing a job and not just as cops," he said. "They [may] come to realize we are here for their protection."

Newsline

Health council to meet

The Health Consumers Advisory Council, a forum for exchanging information between the providers and consumers of health care at Laughlin, will meet with members of the Clinic Executive Committee once a quarter on an informal basis.

The next meeting will be at 1 p.m. today in the Wing Conference Room. All are welcome to attend.

Call Mina Stover at 298-6311 for additional information or to confirm attendance.

Volunteers needed

Officer volunteers are needed to help organize and support Laughlin's Enlisted Appreciation Day, which is set for July 11.

For more information, call 1st Lt. Melissa Parent at 298-5053.

Change of command set

The 47th Aeromedical Dental Squadron will hold a change of command at 8 a.m. July 13 at Ribas Dominicci Circle. Lt. Col. Dan O'Brien will relinquish command to Lt. Col. Elizabeth Clark.

College registration set

Registration for Park University's Fall I term is scheduled for July 16 through Aug. 3. Late registration is Aug. 6 through Aug. 10 at the base education office.

Schedules are available at the base education office or via e-mail at park1@delrio.com.

For more information, call 298-3061 or 298-5593.

Induction ceremony set

The Senior Noncommissioned Officer Induction Ceremony is scheduled for July 28 in the Club XL ballroom. The social hour will start at 6:15 p.m., and dinner will be served at 7 p.m.

Dress for military is mess dress, and dress for civilians is business attire. The meal price for club members is $15 and $18.00 for non-members. Meal selections are London broil and stuffed chicken breast.

To R.S.V.P. or for more information, call first sergeants, Master Sgt. James Moon at 298-5372, or Master Sgt. David Morrison at 298-6415.

Thinking about getting out? Think again!

Call Master Sgt.
Jimmie Davis, 47th
Flying Training
Wing career assistance adviser at 298-5456.

Photo by Airman 1st Class Brad Pettit

Dog-gone good

Staff Sgt. Jonathan Howells, 47th Security Forces Squadron military working dog handler, poses with his dog, Robbie, an 8-year old Belgian Malinois, trained to sniff out explosives, missing people and suspects. Howells and Robbie took home the gold at the Texas Police Games in Lubbock June 21. They have worked together for two years.

'Appreciation,' from page 1

noncommissioned officers against airmen. Auto skills classes will also be held, as well as a pie-in-the-face contest featuring various squadron and group commanders. Proceeds from the contest will go to support the senior noncommissioned officer induction ceremony July 28.

A free family cookout at Club Amistad at 3 p.m. will cap the day's activities. Hamburgers, hot dogs, soda and drinks will be served. Those planning to attend should let their first sergeants know how many family members they will bring so appropriate preparations can be made.

"All officers are welcome to volunteer their time to help out with the events," said Parent.

For more information on volunteering or activities, call 2nd Lt. Paula Schock at 298-4340 or Parent at 298-5053.

Below are the scheduled day's activities.

Enlisted Appreciation Day activities

Free golf: 10 a.m. at the Leaning Pine Golf Course

Slushing: 10 to 11 a.m. at the base track

Softball: 10 to 11:30 a.m. at Liberty Field.

Basketball: 1 to 2 p.m. at the XL Fitness Center

Sand volleyball: 1 to 3 p.m. at the sand volleyball courts by base track

Racquetball: 2 to 3 p.m. at the XL Fitness Center

Air Force seeks $80.5 billion in 2002 budget

WASHINGTON — Defense officials recently released their proposed $329.9 billion budget for fiscal 2002, with $80.5 billion requested for Air Force-specific programs.

The Department of Defense budget, the largest since the mid-1980s, targets pay, housing expenses, infrastructure, military health care, facilities and processes.

According to Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) Dov Zakheim, the DOD budget is broken up as follows:

- Procurement, $61.6 billion
- Operations and maintenance, $125.7 billion
- Research and development, $47.4 billion
- Military personnel, $82.3 billion
- Other, $10.6 billion

The budget gives service members a minimum 5-percent pay raise, with targeted pay raises up to 10 percent for middle grades. Civilian pay raises are set for 3.6 percent, with targeted pay raises in critical skills, such as air traffic controllers. Out-of-pocket expenses for people living off base will be reduced to 11.3 percent and, according to Zakheim, will be eliminated by fiscal 2005.

Quite a bit of the Air Force budget is dedicated to human resources and recruiting and retention, said Maj. Gen. Larry Northington, Air Force deputy assistant secretary for budget.

"The Air Force is a retention service, and maintaining those field technicians is awfully important to us," he said.

The Air Force is trying to maintain its experienced people, targeting mid-level and senior non-commissioned officers, as well as midgrade officers, Northington said. "We put a substantial amount of money in bonuses and special pays, maintaining the enlistment bonus to attract folks in and, in many cases, expanding the reenlistment bonuses to keep them in."

Other highlights of the Air Force budget include:

- Increased military construction, with 60 percent mission focused, 18 percent support related, and 22 percent dealing with quality-of-life issues
- Sustaining current modernization programs, including revitalizing 2,189 military family housing units
- Addressing degraded facilities and modifying, upgrading and improving reliability of aircraft, such as updating F-16 avionics and weapons delivery and improving E-3 radar systems

It is important to defense officials that military people are treated in a way they deserve to be treated, said Zakheim.

"They're the ones out there," he said. "They're the ones risking their lives for us. Clearly, we can't play any games or take any risks with morale; it's as simple as that."

(Courtesy of Air Force Print News)

Please recycle...

Air Force to release staff sergeant list early again

AIR FORCE PERSONNEL CENTER - For the second year in a row the Air Force will release the list of the service's newest staff sergeants earlier than expected.

The release, which normally happens the first week of August, will now take place the first duty hour of July 19 (July 20 for those units across the international date line).

"We're very pleased with the early release because we expect another bumper crop of new staff sergeants this year," said Chief Master Sgt. Greg Haley, Enlisted Promotion and Military Testing Branch chief here. "We have several airmen who need to get enrolled in and complete the Airman Leadership School before they sew on their new stripes, so this early release will allow commanders to get more of these airmen scheduled so they can assume their new ranks on time."

Another reason for the early release is the continued push by the Air Force to shorten wait-times between testing and announcement.

"If we're ready, why not release it?" Haley added. "These early announcements cut down on the anxiety level of our hard-working troops, many who spend the better part of a year preparing for these tough, but fair promotion exams. These written tests, along with the other weighted factors, help measure their potential to serve in the next higher rank."

Although the list of promotees will be released early, actual promotions will not begin until Sept. 1. Promotion statistics will be released as soon as they become available.

(Courtesy photo)

Triple take

Triplets (from left), Douglas, Thomas and Nate Miller, stand in front of an Air Force Recruiting Outreach Vehicle, or ROVER, during its recent visit to their Holland, Mich., high school. The Miller triplets all joined the Air Force together recently. They will go to basic training at Lackland Air Force Base on the same day, but have chosen different career fields and want to go to different bases.

United States Air Force

ONLINE
news

On Friday,
check out the Border Eagle.
Then, on Wednesday,
check out
www.af.mil/

4 x 5 D.R. LIVE

The XLer

Photo by Airman Basic Timothy J. Stein

Hometown: Vacaville, Calif.
Family: Mom, dad, sister, two brothers, brother-in-law, a niece and a nephew
Time at Laughlin: 11 months
Time in service: 1 year, 4 months
Name one way to improve life at Laughlin: Get involved in more activities or social events around the base.

Airman 1st Class
Becky Lederer
47th Aeromedical Dental Squadron aerospace physiology

Greatest accomplishment: Never giving up on the things that are important to me and reaching my lifetime goals.
Hobbies: Softball, snowboarding, and anything that has to do with the water

Bad habit: Having a lead foot when I drive
Favorite food: My dad's homemade noodles with chicken
Favorite beverage: Any kind of slurpee
If you could spend one hour with any person, whom would it be and why? My parents. If it weren't for them I wouldn't be where I am today.

Where are they now?

Name: Capt. Marc C. Mathes
Class/date of graduation from Laughlin: Class 93-06, March 19, 1993
Aircraft you now fly and base you are stationed at: F-15C, Tyndall Air Force Base, Fla.
Mission of your current aircraft? To train fighter pilots
What do you like most about your current aircraft? It has the greatest chance of any aircraft to get an air-to-air kill.
What do you dislike most about your current aircraft? The old Pratt and Whitney engines
What was the most important thing you learned at Laughlin besides learning to fly? Teamwork.
What is your most memorable experience from Laughlin? Assignment day, the day we got to pick our planes.
What advice would you give SUPT students at Laughlin? Go with your heart!

(U.S. Air Force photo)

Will eases burdens of surviving family members

Staff Sgt. Marcel T. Brown

*47th Flying Training Wing Legal Office
NCOIC of claims*

At some point in your life, you'll probably ask yourself, "Do I need a will?" A better question may be, "Can I afford not to have a will?"

Many people ponder getting a will but cling to the notion that they are young and have plenty of time. Some people think that being single and not owning very much means they don't have anything to leave to anybody. There are also people who believe they don't need a will because life insurance is their only asset, and they've already determined their beneficiaries. The decision not to complete a will may not be in your best interest or the interest of family you leave behind.

Consider the time of year we are enjoying. It is summer; people are out traveling, visiting family, taking vacations, going to the lakes, visiting amusement parks, and some people are moving to new bases. Although we have all heard about the 101 Critical Days of Summer, many of us still fail to take into consideration that we may be involved in a fatal accident. In the event that something happens that does contribute to our untimely death, we want to be able to rest assured that we have done everything possible to ensure our assets will be distributed as desired. Nobody wants to saddle their family with any unnecessary burdens when they are grieving simply because of a lack of planning.

Another aspect of having a will that many people do not consider is children. Parents of minor children should determine who will take care of them and their finances in the event both parents die. Your family may not be allowed to make a determination on what happens to your remaining assets and children. If you die without a will, it is possible that the state will distribute your assets. Would you really want some state agency deciding who receives custody of your children and what happens to all of your assets?

There is another document that you can get when you get a will, and that is a living will. It is not actually a part of your will, rather it governs your well-being in the event you are incapacitated.

Photo by Airman Basic Timothy J. Stein

Capt. Lucy Carrillo, 47th Flying Training Wing Legal Office military justice chief, assists Airman 1st Class

Celia Herrera, 47th FTW information manager, with a will worksheet Monday.

Imagine you're involved in an accident, which leaves you unconscious, in critical condition and placed on life support, with no chance that you will ever recover. Someone has to make a decision on what to do. Again, this is not the type of decision that you want to leave with grieving family members. A living will expresses your desires if a situation like this occurs.

Another form of physical incapacitation, often overlooked, is the lack of ability to take care of your own financial affairs. A durable power of attorney, executed while you are healthy, can cover a variety of issues from the handling of bank accounts, the sale and other disposition of property, and the payment of debts and taxes. This power of attorney can either be in effect immediately or it can "spring" into effect upon your incapacitation. A power of attorney should only be given to someone you trust.

Getting a will really is not as difficult as you may think, and it doesn't take very long to complete. Part of the legal office's legal assistance program entails drafting and executing wills. This is a free service provided to people on active duty, people in the Reserves, retirees and family members. People who qualify for military legal assistance can stop by the base legal office any time to pick up a will worksheet. After filling out the worksheet, they can bring it back during legal assistance hours: Tuesday from 3-4 p.m. and Thursday from 8-9 a.m. An attorney can help complete the process.

The best advice concerning wills can be found in the Boy Scout motto – be prepared. Ask yourself, can you really afford not to have a will? A better question may be, can your family afford it?

Poor health, lost income, jail, discharge ...

Ecstasy?

Maybe they should change the name.

Marching on

(Courtesy photo)

Col. Jack Egginton, 47th Flying Training Wing commander, cheers on members of the 47th Security Forces Squadron during the Warrior 5k Walk/Run June 29. An estimated 150 people participated in the walk/run, which will be a quarterly event. Col. Egginton said the event was held to promote camaraderie, better fitness, morale, and to simply act as a team. For more information on future walk/runs, call the XL Fitness Center at 298-5251.

Sports Standings
(As of June 18)

Softball Golf

American League
Team	Won	Loss	Team	Points
87 FTS	7	2	Sim Ops	43.5
LSI	5	4	OSS	39.5
OSS	5	4	CES	33.5
86 FTS	2	7	87FTS	24.5
84/85 FTS	1	7	Med Group	21.5
National League			LCSAM	20
			LSI 1	20
			47 FTW	15
			SFS	13
			LSI 2	2.5
Team	Won	Loss
Med Group	7	1
CES	7	1
Support	3	4
LCSAM	4	5
East Inc.	3	5
SFS	1	7			